

The Jewelry Redesign Guide

Stacey Lorinczi · Lorinczi Jewelry

May 31, 2026

The Jewelry Redesign Guide

HOW TO BRING YOUR OLD, INHERITED & UNWORN JEWELRY BACK TO LIFE

A practical guide from Stacey Lorinczi, Lorinczi Jewelry

You have a piece of jewelry you never wear.

Maybe it's your grandmother's ring, a little too ornate for everyday life. Maybe it's an engagement ring from a setting that's dated, or a tangle of gold chains in the back of a drawer. You can't bring yourself to sell it — there's too much meaning in it — but you don't wear it either.

There's a third option, and it's the best one: redesign it.

Jewelry redesign takes the gems, the gold, and the story you already own and reimagines them into a piece you'll actually wear. This guide walks you through how it works, what's possible, what it costs, and how to start — so you can turn something forgotten into something treasured.

1. What “Jewelry Redesign” Actually Means

Redesign isn't repair, and it isn't buying new. It's reimagining what you already have:

- Resetting — moving your diamonds or gemstones from an old setting into a new one.
- Repurposing gold — melting down and refining unworn gold to use in a new piece (and crediting its value toward the work).
- Full redesign — reshaping a piece entirely, or combining several pieces into one.

The result is a one-of-a-kind piece built around your materials and your style — not a catalog item.

2. Five Things You Can Redesign

If it holds meaning, it can be reimagined:

1. Engagement rings & wedding bands — modernize a dated setting, mark an anniversary, or honor a marriage with a fresh design.

2. Inherited & heirloom jewelry — turn a grandmother's ring or a mother's necklace into something for every day.
 3. Old or broken gold — refine unworn gold and apply its value toward your new piece.
 4. Loose or set diamonds & gemstones — gather stones from several pieces into one design.
 5. Pieces that are “just not you” — a gift or inheritance you love sentimentally but never wear.
-

3. The Redesign Process, Step by Step

A good redesign should feel collaborative and transparent — and these days, it can be done entirely remotely.

1. Free consultation. Talk through your pieces, your story, and what you'd love to wear.
2. Share photos. Send images of your jewelry and stones so the designer can assess what's possible.
3. Custom design. You receive a design built around your materials — and approve every detail before any work begins.
4. Refining & crafting. Your gold is refined, your stones are reset, and the new piece is handcrafted.
5. Your new heirloom. The finished piece arrives — made to be worn, loved, and passed on.

Tip: Choose a designer who shows you the design before making it, gives you a clear quote up front, and ships insured and tracked. No surprises.

4. What Does Jewelry Redesign Cost?

Every redesign is custom, so cost depends on the design, the materials, and the labor. But here's the part people don't expect:

Because you supply your own gems and gold, redesign often costs significantly less than buying a comparable new piece. Unworn gold can be refined and its value credited toward the work, and you're not paying for a new center stone you already own.

The right approach: a transparent, itemized quote after your consultation — and nothing proceeds until you approve it.

5. Why Redesign Beats Buying New

- Sentiment. You keep the diamond from your grandmother's ring — the actual stone she wore — in a piece you'll wear every day.
 - Sustainability. Reusing gold and gems avoids the environmental cost of newly mined materials.
 - Value. Your existing materials reduce the cost of the new piece.
 - Uniqueness. A redesign is one of a kind, designed around your life — not mass-produced.
-

6. How to Get Started

1. Gather your pieces. Pull together everything you never wear — even broken or incomplete items have value.
 2. Take a few photos. Natural light, a few angles. Don't worry about perfection.
 3. Book a free consultation. Share your photos and your vision, and a designer will tell you what's possible.
-

Ready to Bring Your Jewelry Back to Life?

I'm Stacey Lorinczi. I design and handcraft custom jewelry, and I specialize in redesigning the pieces people thought they'd never wear again — turning old, inherited, and unworn jewelry into modern heirlooms made from your own gems and gold.

Start with a free virtual consultation. Send a few photos and share your story, and together we'll plan the piece you'll actually reach for.

👉 lorinczi.com/pages/jewelry-redesign 👉 Book your free consultation:
lorinczi.com/products/free-consultation

Lorinczi Jewelry — handcrafted, bespoke fine jewelry & custom jewelry redesign.